Winemakers Notes:

Long before sulphur, the ancient Greeks turned to the sea – washing their grapes in ocean water to preserve them naturally. In 2024, our winemaker stumbled upon this forgotten practice and, on a whim, decided to give it a try.
We took a two ton fermentor and added a bin each of 100% whole bunch Pinot Noir and Gewürztraminer. They were then soaked in enough Salish Sea water to cover the grapes, before being drained, pressed, and wild fermented in older French Oak.
Nothing was added and nothing was taken away.

Tasting Note:

Okeanós carries the hallmark freshness and elegance of Vancouver Island, brimming with fresh, bright acidity and finishing with a rich, creamy texture. A gentle but complex delivery of white flower, Nashi pear, and apple skin, lifted by a delicate salinity that leaves you salivating, craving your next sip.

Why it's Special:

This is a groundbreaking new release that brings the ocean directly into the winemaking process. Inspired by the rugged beauty and maritime character of Vancouver Island, Okeanós represents a bold exploration of place, innovation, and connection.
